Course Description

Practicum in Education and Training is a field-based internship program that is designed to provide students with the opportunity to demonstrate their understanding of child and adolescent development principles, as well as principles of effective teaching and training practices.

Students will be assigned to an EMS ISD campus and work under the combined direction and supervision of the course instructor, campus mentor teacher (field site teacher), and campus administration. Students learn to plan and direct individualized instruction and group activities amongst their field-site student population, as well as with their peer “professionals”.

Students will:

- Prepare instructional materials of their own design
- Assist with recordkeeping
- Make physical arrangements within the classroom setting, as well as to facilitate group activities
- Complete other appropriate responsibilities of a classroom teacher, trainer, paraprofessional, or other educational personnel

Students are encouraged to join their campus chapter of Family Career and Community Leaders of America (FCCLA) and compete in the Teach and Train Occupational Event category as a part of their documentation of coursework.
