

I Can Show YouTube Videos in my Classroom?

You certainly can! Just make sure that you have ALWAYS watched the video in its entirety BEFORE showing it to your students. Do not ever search for a YouTube video on the fly and show it to your class.

Using Quietube

A great way to show YouTube videos to your students is by utilizing a tool called Quietube. Quietube takes a YouTube video you are currently viewing and puts it on a blank background, which gets rid of all of the advertisements, suggested videos, and comments.

There's even an extension for Quietube for those of you that use Google Chrome as your web browser. To get it, just go to <https://chrome.google.com/webstore/detail/mngbdcinkijccpccfdnhhpifikompnag?hl=en> and install the extension. This will put a button in your address bar that you can click to put a YouTube video in Quietube (see below).

Embedding YouTube videos on your Webpage

Another option for viewing or sharing YouTube videos is to embed a video in your webpage.

1. Click the Share button that's located below the YouTube video you are viewing
2. Click the Embed button that is below the link that is displayed
